Petersbourg, June, 4.

COUNT Ostein, the Emperour's Minister, went from hence the 30th of last Month, in order to follow the Russian Plenipotentiaries to Niemerof; it is thought he will be near a Month on the Road before he reaches that Place. We daily expect to hear that Felt-Marshal Munich is got with his Army on the Banks of the River Bog, where some think the Grand Vizier will oppose his Passage to prevent his besieging Oczakow; but by all the Accounts this Court has from those Parts, the Turks do not seem to have an Army strong enough to oppose that of the Russians. This Morning the Moscow Post brought the melancholly News, that the greatest Part of that City was burnt down by a Fire which happened the 29th of last Month. Some Days before a Fire consumed a great Part of the Town of Jeroslau; and last Night there was a Fire near her Majesty's Summer Palace, which has done but little Damage; but the Loss at Moscow and Jeroslau is not to be expressed.

Copenhagen, June 29, N. S. The Margravine, though she recovers but slowly, is now on the mending Hand, and in a hopeful Way. By all Accounts from Dantzick the Mortality there daily Decreases: This Court however, still thinks fit to exact a due Observation of the Order of Quarantain; which is the more necessary, because the Magistrate of Dantzick does not seem inclined to take any Precautions with respect to Poland, where the Plague unquestionably Rages: And, as the Wool of that Country is usualy brought down about this Time to the Sea Ports, there is the greatest Reason to apprehend that Infection may be conveyed along with it. They would certainty not be so Rigorous in this Point here, if they did not conceive the Danger to be very imminent, since the Woollen Manufactures, which they diligently pursue, may possibly stand still for want of Materials, should the present Caution and Difficulty in supplying them continue.

Hambourg, July 2, N. S. Letters from Petersbourg which arrived last Night, bring an Account of a dreadful Conflagration that has happened at Moscow, and consumed two thirds of that great City. Two or three and twenty Thousand Houses have been burnt down to the Ground: It is true, the Buildings are of Timber, and of no great Value; but as the Palace has been much damaged, and several Magazines destroyed, the Loss must be very considerable.

Whitehall, July 2.

The King having been informed, that the Republick of Venice had shewed particular Marks of Distinction and Honour to the Pretender's Son, who was lately in that City under the Name of the Count d'Albanie, his Majesty was pleased to order, that Signior Busenello, Resident here from that Republick, should depart out of his Dominions in two Days from the Signification to him of such his Majesty's Pleasure, which was made by a Letter from the Duke of Newcastle, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State; and Signior Busenello set out accordingly for Dover on the 25th past.
